Foreword

The Research Grants Index is published annually to accelerate the interchange of knowledge of research activities within the scientific community and among administrators of Federal scientific research programs. The present volume describes some 15,000 current research projects which are being conducted in 1,552 American and foreign research institutions under Public Health Service support. In fiscal year 1962, the Public Health Service awarded nearly $400 million for these activities, which represents about one-third of the Nation's total expenditures for medical and health related research. The scope and complexity of these projects are reflected in this Index, which contains data classified under approximately 9,000 specific subject headings.

This publication is twice as large as the first Research Grants Index, which appeared last year. The increase in size is due partially to the greater number of projects represented but, more significantly, to the additional information which has been included as a result of suggestions from enthusiastic users of the first Index. It is believed that this volume, with its added features, marks a distinct advance in communication in the biomedical sciences.

Preface

The data in this second annual Research Grants Index were derived from analyses of documents prepared by the investigators of approximately 15,000 current research projects supported by the Public Health Service during fiscal year 196[illegible]. The format is essentially the same as in the 1961 edition, although a few changes have been made and two supplemental appendices have been added.

Keyword Indexing

As in the fiscal year 1961 Research Grants Index, the conventional "keyword" or "coordinate" system of indexing, which is a straight alphabetical arrangement of specific subject headings, has been modified so that certain related data are grouped together. Grouping of related categories has been accomplished by the use of (1) subheadings ("thiotranssulfurase" is a subheading under "transsulfurases"); (2) "tied" terms ("radiolabeled carbon"); or (3) extensive cross-references under significant terms ("bacterial diseases" is cross-referenced to "anthrax," "bacterial meningitis," "botulism," etc.)

Descriptors Instead of Titles

In the last year's Index, project titles were used under the subject headings. In this volume the project title has been replaced by a series of "descriptors," additional keywords appropriate to the content of the listed document. It may be explained that our indexers select an average of 10 appropriate keywords (a range of from 3 to 25) for each document they index. All keywords are verified against a master thesaurus. Using each keyword in succession as a main concept, the indexers further describe the main term by as many of the remaining keywords ("descriptors") as may be necessary to delineate the meaning, forming a telescopic abstract for each keyword concept. The only order specified for the descriptors is that the main concept appear first, and, generally, the experimental animal, last; and that the combination of descriptors convey concise, intelligible information.

Investigators Review Indexing

The indexed terms, selected by the professional staff of the Research Documentation Section, Division of Research Grants, for each document to be listed are in every case submitted to the project investigator for approval. Of the grantees whose research projects are listed in the present volume, only 27 percent suggested changes in indexing entries.

Project Numbers

Each telescopic abstract under the subject heading is preceded by the Public Health Service number assigned to each research project. The letter prefix of the project number corresponds to the disease-oriented interests of the institute or division which supported the research; e.g., allergy; arthritis; cancer; dental; heart. A complete explanation of the project number prefixes is given in the "Glossary of Abbreviations." Identifying information pertaining to the project number is listed in Appendix I.

Appendix I

In this appendix the number identifying any given project is followed by (1) the name of the Public Health Service advisory panel that gave the project technical review and appraisal when the grant was applied for; (2) the name and address of the principal investigator; (3) the title of the project; and (4) references to recent publications creditable to the research.

Appendix II

Appendix II appears for the first time in the 1962 Index. This is an arrangement of projects in broad categories corresponding to the advisory panels to which the projects were originally assigned for technical review. This categorical assignment was made by staff members in the Research Grants Review Branch of the Division of Research Grants.

Appendix III

Also new in the 1962 Research Grants Index is Appendix III, an alphabetical investigator appendix. The name of the principal investigator of a project appears in uppercase type; that of a coinvestigator in lower case. The project number precedes the name so that further identifying information can be obtained from Appendix I.

Publication Techniques

The negative film copy for this volume was produced from item cards which were photographed sequentially by a Listomatic camera and printed by the offset reproduction method. Computer programs are being developed, however, which should make it possible to obtain computer printouts by 1964.

Thesaurus

Because of the urgent need for adequate indexing guides by which knowledge pertaining to scientific research can be prepared for dissemination, the thesaurus which was compiled in connection with the preparation of this Index is being published concurrently as a separate volume. The compilation represents technical indexing terms derived from extremely specialized research in all areas comprising the broad spectrum of the medical and allied health sciences. The thesaurus contains approximately 6,700 main headings, 2,200 subheadings, 2,300 "see" references, and 1,000 instructional terms. Relationships among terms are indicated by about 9,000 "see also" references. It has been programed for computer and is updated regularly by electronic data-processing techniques. Information regarding the availability of the thesaurus may be obtained from the Research Documentation Section, Division of Research Grants, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda 14, Md.

Glossary of Abbreviations

Grant No. The grant number is composed of code letters and a number. The code letters represent the institute or division supporting the project. In the Index portion of this book and in Appendix I, projects are arranged alphabetically by institute code letters and numerically within each Institute grouping. Code letters for the various institutes and divisions are as follows:

AC—Accident Prevention
AI—Allergy and Infectious Diseases
AM—Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases
AP—Air Pollution
CA—Cancer
DE—Dental
EF—Environmental Engineering and Food Protection
GM—General Medical Sciences
GS—General Research Support
HE—Heart
HM—Hospital and Medical Facilities
MH—Mental Health
NB—Neurological Diseases and Blindness
OG—Clinical Research Centers
OH—Occupational Health
RH—Radiological Health
W—Hospital Facilities
WP—Water Supply and Pollution Control

In the three Appendices to this publication the number of years in which a project has been active is shown as part of the grant number following a hyphen. Thus grant NB-03492-1 is a project in its first year of support, and NB-01392-5 is in its fifth year.
